July/August Magazines

There should be sufficient magazines in church today for everyone who wants one to have a copy. There has been some difficulty in the printing process for a variety of reasons including staff holiday and temperamental technology. Special thanks are due to Val Francksen for all her efforts that culminated in the magazines being received. We did have a few copies last week with a yellow covers and on this latest batch they are white. This is probably a 'first' and those of you who managed to get a yellow one might find it becomes a good investment!

Anna's Walking Next Week

Anna Colvile will be commencing her Coast to Coast walk on Tuesday, covering the 200 miles across England from St Bees on the Cumbrian west coast to Robin Hood's Bay on the east coast of Yorkshire. In company with three other teenagers, she will be collecting donations for two children's cancer charities. If anyone would like to make a donation, please do so via one of the churchwardens.

Sea Sunday

Next Sunday, 12th July, is Sea Sunday. The floral displays will have a maritime theme and if anyone has material that can help with the interpretations and would like to see it in church, please let Brenda Whatty know (773145). Such items as shells, nets, a model boat, crab pot, etc, would be ideal. It is understood that we can look forward to Rev Andrew Scott giving a brief account of his Naval Service experiences and as a Chaplain.

Community Fun Day

The Eggbuckland Community Fun Day is next Saturday, 11th July in the playing fields immediately below the Prince Maurice and the chip shop. St Edward's will have a tent with members in attendance. If you would like to be involved in any way, please speak to Peter Anderson or Rev Chris.

Only Joking!

Prior to his holiday, a man phoned the seaside hotel where he was to stay to check its exact location. "That's easy," said the proprietor. "It's only a stone's throw from the beach." "How will I recognise it," asked the man. "No problem," said the proprietor. "It's the one with all the broken windows."

Pleased to Meet You

There was an opportunity last Sunday morning for members of St Edward's to meet Carl & Linda Budden and for them to get to know St Edward's a little better. Carl will be commencing duties as a self-supporting minister here in September after Ordination at Exeter Cathedral on the 13th of that month.

AccommodAtion needed

Also beginning her South West Youth Ministries training here in September will be Libby Marsh. Accommodation for Libby has yet to be arranged and various possibilities are being considered. The best option would be for Libby to reside in the parish, perhaps as a lodger or in shared accommodation. If anyone has any offers or positive suggestions, please speak to one of the churchwardens or Rev Chris.

Summer Fayre Goes with a Swing

The school hall and playing fields at St Edward's Primary School were filled with stalls and fun events for the Summer Fayre on Friday afternoon. It was good to see so many familiar faces helping and supporting the occasion and judging by the attendance and happy faces it was an unqualified success. No doubt Helen Routledge will feel that all her organising and hard work was well worthwhile. It is to be hoped that William Buckner, who was soaked to the skin having spent the afternoon in a pillory whilst wet sponges were thrown at him, did not catch cold. There was a bouncy castle, face painting, handicrafts, ice cream and drinks, cakes and all manner of goodies. The recently formed School Band performed and some members of the Eggbuckland Community Choir sang a number of songs, coping extremely well competing with myriad distractions. There is no doubt the children all had a great time and mums, dads, grandparents, aunts and uncles appeared surprisingly relaxed. Perhaps the favourable weather had something to do with that.

A Prayer for Olwen

In our thoughts today can you include a prayer for Hall Secretary and PCC member, Olwen Grindell, who is in hospital for a few days having injured a finger in a gardening accident on Friday. Wishing you a speedy recovery, Olwen.

Wanted – Old Mobile Phones

The 'Impact Youth Group' from the Worship Centre at Estover are collecting any old mobile phones – working or not – to raise money for this year's trip to 'Soul Survivors'. If you have an unused or broken mobile phone, please pass to Helen Soole who will deliver it to the Worship Centre.
